An Anchor to Windward

sava at the experimental station was so satisfactory that a turpentine dealer, who employed seventy-five mules, saw the profit in its use and prepared thirty acres for feed.

At the close of his splendidly impressive and effective talk, he answered many questions very satisfactorily.

Professor Ewell, who represented the United States agricultural department, made an interesting address, which was largely statistical, showing the growth of starch making in Germany and the United States. The former led in potatoes, but the latter led in corn starch, the product in October, 1894, being measured by about 300,000 tons each.

He also showed that our German friends across the water made rice starch for textiles and glucose for candies. Starch was also used to color sugars, and glucose to do the same service for liquors. A product of starch was dextrine, a substitute for gum arabic, and used to coat postal cards and envelopes.

He said that American ingenuity and invention had kept fully abreast with the manufacturers in other countries, and that America had more than held her own in all the products of starch or its bi-products.

H. B. Stevens, formerly a well known orange grower at Citra, but now John B. Stetson's manager at DeLand, added his testimony to the value of cassava as a feed product.

In answer to the question as to what it would cost to plant, grow and dig an acre of cassava, Professor Stockbridge said he would contract for any number of acres at $12 an acre, roots delivered in a wagon, but would not haul it.

Frank G. Perkins, the manager of the Planters' Manufacturing Company, the cassava factory five miles south of Sanford, was called on and explained the great uses to which starch were put, namely: the sizing of all cotton goods and all other fabrics. Without its application it could not be woven. The demand was almost unlimited, and, as corn and wheat starch contained impurities, which science had not yet eliminated, potato starch, the only pure product, was the competitor cassava starch had to meet in the markets of the world.

He said he verily believed that Florida was so favored in the growth of cassava that nothing could hinder her from making it the greatest possible success, not only as a commodity for starch but a royal bounty in stock feeding.

Henry M. Flagler of the Standard Oil Co., whose wife is confined in a private sanitarium, has stated in the supreme court that it costs him $1038 for her maintenance a month.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSON, Va., Dec. 31.
I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and B. & C.
Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood.
It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?
